

Campus welcomes alumni to 32nd GCAA Triennial Reunion

More than 100 Gallaudet alumni return to campus this week for the Gallaudet College Alumni Association's 32nd Triennial Reunion. Between a Wednesday night social and a Sunday morning continental breakfast, the reunion schedule is full of business, entertainment, and opportunities to exercise both body and mind.

Faculty and staff are invited to the GCAA Art Exhibit and Sale, open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday through Saturday in the Ely Center. Deaf artists, hobbyists, and members of the Gallaudet community will exhibit their arts, crafts, and photography.

The campus community is also welcome to participate in the following reunion activities.

Thursday: Harlan Lane, author of "When the Mind Hears," a history of the deaf, will be on campus. From 10:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and again from 1:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m., he will autograph copies of his book in the College Bookstore. The book is available for $24.95.

At 3:15 p.m. a special ceremony will be held in the Ely Auditorium to celebrate the bicentennial of Laurent Clerc. Special and honored guests will be Clerc Galloway, great-great granddaughter of Laurent Clerc, and Harlan Lane. Following the program, alumni and friends will visit a Laurent Clerc exhibit in the Merrill Learning Center.

During the reunion, the GCAA will sell iron-on transfers of the face of Laurent Clerc and his LC logo. The transfers are $6.00 per pair.

Saturday: An exhibition will be held in the Ely Center Multi-Purpose Room from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Booths will be set up featuring local area businesses, organizations, and campus departments. Videotapes will also be shown throughout the day.

A ceremony will be held at 1:15 p.m. to celebrate the opening of the Gallaudet Museum in Chapel Hall. Following this ceremony, the traditional reunion and class pictures will be taken on the Chapel Hall steps.

Bringing the day to a close will be a picnic on Faculty Row from 6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. and a variety show, "A World of Our Own," starting at 8:30 p.m. in Elstad Auditorium. The show, produced and directed by Cynthia Saltzman, will be emceed by Curt Robbins and Marsha Miceli. Tickets for the show are $5.00.

During the reunion, alumni will have several occasions to meet and talk with President Jerry C. Lee. Dr. and Mrs. Lee will hold a reception for them Thursday evening in the Edward Miner Gallaudet Residence. On Saturday morning Dr. Lee will participate in a breakfast discussion titled "If I Were President. . . ."

Gerald Burstein, GCAA president since 1982, called his term "exciting, emotional, and productive." In addition to witnessing many changes at Gallaudet in the last 3 years, Burstein was involved in the growth of the GCAA in terms of new members (769), new chapters (5), and closer involvement in the mission of the College.

The 32nd Triennial Reunion was planned and organized by a committee headed by Mary Anne Pugin. The GCAA will celebrate its centennial in 1989.

This pitcher and plate, presented to Laurent Clerc in 1850 "as a token of grateful respect by the Deaf mutes of New England," will be part of the Clerc Exhibit in the Merrill Learning Center.

Prep summer program underway

by Don Jewler

A new summer school program is being offered at the Northwest Campus from May 22 to July 3. Thirty-seven preparatory students are working to improve their English and math skills and to prepare the way to success in their freshman year. During the six weeks of this program, five teachers are leading the students through intensive courses in composition and reading as well as in algebra and geometry. Two hours daily of required practice supplement the math courses. Rudolph Hines, coordinator of Math at the Northwest Campus, is working closely with another math skills specialist to give the preps supervised practice and individualized tutorial lessons at the Alternative Learning Center.

Kathryn Meadow-Orlans of the Gallaudet Research Institute received an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Denison University on June 1.

Meadow-Orlans receives honorary doctorate

Kathryn Meadow-Orlans, a researcher at the Gallaudet Research Institute, received an honorary degree, Doctor of Humane Letters, from Denison University, her undergraduate alma mater.

Denison's president, Board of Trustees, faculty and senior class invited Meadow-Orlans to the school's campus in Granville, OH, to receive the degree during commencement exercises June 1.

Meadow-Orlans graduated from Denison in 1951 with a bachelor's degree in sociology. In 1967 she received a doctorate in sociology from the University of California, Berkeley. Throughout her career she has been particularly interested in the interactions of families with deaf children and in the social-emotional-linguistic development of deaf children. She is the author of "Deafness and Child Development" and the co-author (with Hilde Schlesinger) of "Sound and Sign: Childhood Deafness and Mental Health."

Students visit England on youth exchange

A group of fifteen students—hearing and hearing impaired—will participate in the 1985 President's International Youth Exchange Program by spending July 13 through August 3 in England this summer. The students, from high school programs across the country, are winners of a competition jointly sponsored by Gallaudet College and the Central Bureau Youth Department in London. Financial assistance for the program is provided by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the United States Information Agency.

To qualify for the exchange program, students had to submit a project related to the United Kingdom, three letters of reference, and several essays dealing with deafness and the United Kingdom. The students' submissions ranged from paintings to term papers to video tapes. The entries were judged by a panel composed of two MSSD teachers, two KDES teachers, and two staff members from the International Center on Deafness at Gallaudet. An MSSD student from Pennsylvania, Sharon McCaleb, was among the fifteen students selected for the program.

The students will travel to Gallaudet on July 10 for three days of orientation before leaving for England. Once in the U.K., students will visit schools, agencies, and organizations related to deafness in London, York, and Devon. Time will also be reserved for sightseeing.

According to Eli Savanick, director of Gallaudet's International Center on Deafness, the exchange will foster two types of cross cultural experience. "We're hoping the hearing students will have a cross cultural experience with the deaf students," he said. "And that
